Scott, John. Civil War, Co. G 35 Ill. Inf. d. Apr. 8, 1875 (Cf. #32 and 33 in the larger cemetery. The smaller stone may be another John Scott; the lists of Civil War casualties in the 1878 History of Fayette County lists no John Scott as having died in the war in 1862.)

Moses D. Morey (42) was a doctor, born in Vermont to Charles and Phoebe Morey. Moses' wife, Sally (39) was a daughter of Dr. John Frederick Aubrey, who was born in France, and came to Vermont because of religious persecutions in that nation. He was a soldier and surgeon in the Revolutionary War. Moses brought his family to Cumberland (Otego) township in 1838. They had lived in Pennsylvania prior to that year. Moses' son, John Frederick Morey (1817-1867) and his son Lloetharo (1856-1939) were prominent doctors in Vandalia.

Alonzo Morey (1) had a twin brother, Lorenzo D. (1822- ) who participated in the 1849 California gold rush. The Moreys were ancestors of the Denny family who founded Denny's store in Vandalia.5

Comfort Williams was born in Virginia to John (1755-1831) and Margaret (1759-1828) Weatherington.4 She married Josiah Williams (1786-1826) in 1813 in Ohio. He was the son of John and Rebecca Williams. Josiah and Comfort had six children, of whom only Josiah II is buried in the Pilcher Cem. Josiah I died in Ohio and is buried beside his mother- and father-in-law and brother George Washington Williams in the Obetz, Ohio graveyard. Comfort brought her six children to Illinois about 1840. She died Tuesday, March 30, 1847 between 8 and 9 a.m., after suffering from pleurisy for eight days.

William Chaffin (10) was a minister from Pennsylvania. About 1843, he and a Mr. Schooley, traveling through this area, organized the Christian church at the Central schoolhouse on Four-Mile prairie. M.D. Morey was among its first congregation.5

Susan Straub Crawford (-6) was born in Pennsylvania, and married Paul Crawford, probably in Circleville, Ohio. Paul is believed to have been killed by Indians while taking his family to Illinois. Susan arrived here in the 1840's, and lived the rest of her life in Otego twp. She died shortly after attending a quilting.

Visitors to the cemetery often wonder why Elvina and Lemuel Parks (9) are buried in the far corner of the graveyard away from the other graves. The infants died of smallpox, a highly contagious and feared disease at that time. They were interred separately to lessen the chance of someone contracting the disease from the deceased children.

Moses Cluxton (15) was a Vandalia blacksmith, born in Kentucky. He married Mary Llewellyn (Jan. 15, 1813-Aug. 12, 1859). She is buried in the west side of the Old State Cemetery at Vandalia, near E. W. Thompson (see other cemetery) and four grandchildren of Thompson's and hers (See family chart of the other cemetery, sec. 4) As in the case of E.W. and Susanna Thompson, it is not known why Moses and Mary are not buried together.20

David Washburn (6) was a Cape Cod whale fisherman before he moved to New York and married Esther Griffith (22). They came to Fayette County in 1836 with their seventeen children. One of them, George (1825-1860), whose arm was shot off in the Civil War, has one wife and several descendents buried in the Pilcher Cemetery, though he and his other two wives are buried in the Bolt Cemetery near Ramsey, Ill. Octavia Pilcher Washburn died after stepping on a nail. Catharine Bolt Washburn died while George was at war. When he returned home after losing his arm, he stopped at the Long household, who informed him of his wife's death. There, he met Ellen Long Goodson, a widow. They were married in 1866. They had two girls, Abagail (110), and Susan Wahsburn England who is buried in the Bolt cemetery.
